Call for PhD Papers

Tri-City Day-Ahead Workshop on the Future of Financial Intermediation

at the Frankfurt School of Finance & Management, Germany organized by the Frankfurt School of Finance & Management, Bayes Business School, University of Zurich and Leibniz Institute SAFE

in coordination with Regulating Financial Markets

Sunday, August 21, 2022

Submission Deadline: June 15, 2022

Technological change, climate change, financial crises, and shocks to the real economy have triggered a rapid evolution of financial intermediation. Over the past decade, the regulatory framework was overhauled, new players entered the market, novel technologies were adapted, and demand for financial intermediation shifted in response to structural change and shocks to economies worldwide. This workshop plans to discuss papers surrounding the future of financial intermediation. Topics of interest include but are not limited to:

- Climate change and financial intermediation
- Technological change and financial intermediation
- Payment infrastructure, sanctions, and non-financial risks
- Macroprudential regulation and the interaction between Monetary and Macroprudential policies
- Non-bank financial intermediation

PhD Mentoring

The aim of the workshop is to allow PhD students to present their research and to receive feedback from senior researchers. PhD presentations will be discussed by senior mentors. Accommodation will be covered; participants only need to cover their travel expenses.

Further Information

The deadline for submission is June 15, 2022 (11:59pm CET). PhD papers should be submitted to day-ahead@fs.de. There is no paper submission fee. Presenting authors will be invited to the conference dinner.
